"Then what do they drink for ?" de manded the excitable member.

"I'll tell you," said Joe, "if you'll have a little patience. I have to do it in my own way, for I ain't used to public speakin'. You all know who I am. My father was a church-member, an' so was mother. Father done days work fur a dollar'n a quarter a day. How much firewood an' clothes an' food d'ye suppose that money could pay for ! We had to eat what came cheapest, an' when some of the women here wuz a sittin' comfortable o'nights, a knittin' an' sewin' an' readin'. mother wuz hangin' aroun' the butcher shop, tryin' to beat the butcher down on the scraps that wasn't good enough for you folks. Soon as we young uns wuz big enough to do anything we wuz put to work. I've worked for men in this room twelve and fourteen hours a day. I don't blame 'em—they didn't mean nothin' out of the way-they worked just as long 'emselves, and so did their boys. But they allers had somethin' inside to keep 'em up, an' I didn't. Does anybody wonder that when I harvested with some men that kep' liquor in the fields an' found how it helped me long, that I took it and thought'twas a reg'lar blessin'? An' when I foun' 'twas a-hurtin' me, how was I to go to work an' giv' it up, when it stood me instead of

"The gentleman is right, I have no doubt," said the chairman, "so far as limited class is concerned, but of course no such line of argument applies to the majority of cases. There are plenty of well-fed, healthy, and lazy young men hanging about the tavern in this very village. "I know it," said Joe Digg, "an' want to talk about 'em, too. I don't want to take up all the time of this meet n', but you'll all 'low that I know more bout that tavern than anybody else does. There's lots of young men aroun' it, an' why ! 'Cause it's made pleasant for 'em, an' it's the only place in town that is. I've been a faithful attendant at that tavern for nigh onto twenty years, an' never knowed a hanger-on there that nad a comfortable home of his own. Some of them that don't have to go to bed hungry hav scoldin' squabblin' parents, an' they can't go a visitin' an' hear Of every description. We will also free music, an' see nice things of every manufacture to order for all who may sort to take their minds off, as some young men in this meetin' house can. But the tavern is allus comfortable, an' there's generally somebody to sing a song an' tell a joke, an' they commence goin' there more for a pleasant time than for a drink, at fust. There's lots of likely boys goin' there that I wish'd stay away, an' I've often felt like tellin' em so, but what's the use? Where are they to go

I want the people here, one an' all, to understand that though I'm past helpin' now, there's been fifty times in the last twenty years when I might hev been stopped short, of anybody'd been sensible and good-hearted enough to give me a lift.', Joe Digg sat down, and there was a long pause. The chairman whispered to the leader of the Glee Club, and the club sang a song, but somehow it failed to awaken the usual enthusiasm. After the singing had ended, the chairman himself took the floor, and moved the appointment of a permanent committee to look after the intemperate, and to collectfunds when the use of money seemed necessary and the village doctor created a sensation by moving that Mr. Joe Digg should be a member of the committee. Deacon Towser, who was the richest man in the village, and who dreaded subscription papers, started an insidious opposition but the new member of the committee (though manifestly out of order) outmaneuvered the Deacon by accepting both amendments, and remarking that in hard fight folks would take all the help they could get. Somehow, as soon as the new committee-determining to open a place of entertainment in opposition to the tavern, and furnish it pleasantly, and make it an attractive gathering-place for young men asked for contributions to enable them Backley abated marvelously. But Squire

AT HOME.

The question of how farms and homes are to be improved should naturally lead the farmer to think first of the surroundings of the home. The need of giving attention to this department is apparent to all who go about the country and see the tion for improvement frequently receives ceives thereply: It costs too much money. But this is not true. Farmers who have the most money and are the possessors of bank stock, sadly neglect their premises, while others, with an eye to neatness and a taste for improvements, have everything in good shape, with but little means to do it with. The example of England and France is an illustration, and shows how the humble peasant, who cultivates only pay largely, but also an attractive, home-like residence, by the culture and taste displayed in its surroundings. A large sum of money is not required, but simply a little taste in arranging things to make them look pleasant and inviting to the eye. What a change could be wrought in the aspect of our farming districts if the garden, and door-yards, which are too frequently filled with wood-piles, heaps of rubbish, a mixture of shade-trees, weeds and grass, were converted into a smooth lawn, with tastefully arranged fruit trees and shrubbery. Tree culture, from the seed or from transplanting, cost but little effort, and no money, and two boys, one of whom was eleven years wife who, like himself, possessed culture, taste and refinement. The parsonage was first painted, new fences and a new barn were built, the surroundings of the church-yard were improved, trees set out, etc., which was a suggestion to others, and the neighborhood was soon improved in the same manner. HIS ADMITTANCE TO THE BAR, MARRIAGE, AND COMMENCEMENT OF HIS In June, when Col. Burr was at Newburg, a guest of Gen. McDougal, the British threatened West Point; and as the general had tried to send word to Washington, with no success, he desired Burr to undertake the mission. He consented and succeeded. After this he went to New Haven, Connecticut, where he was compelled "to take to his bed." Before he had entirely recovered, 2,000 British came into the city. Immediately his services were offered the militia of the place, but were not accepted. He was then told that the students of Yale had organized themselves together. He soon galloped up to the College green and offered himself to them as their leader. They accepted, marched into town, and were joined by a few of the militia; then started for the enemy. The students came off victorious. "For eighteen months after leaving the army Col. Burr was an invalid, and did little but visit his to study law in earnest under Judge Patterson of New Jersey. The Judge was a thorough lawyer, and believed in teachng the principles of law first and the ractice afterwards; but Burr desired it to be the other way, because he did not want to study law very long. So in the spring of 1781 he left and made arangements with a Thomas Smith (a city ractitioner) to have the use of his law books, and to ask him any questions that he wanted to know, for a very small sum of money. After reading law for six months he thought he was competent to practice. So he went to Albany and applied for admission to the bar; but difficulties arose. The rule of the court was, that a person should study law four years before commencing to practice. Burr had not studied more than one year; and as he could not find any lawyer to give a motion for changing the rule, he took the case up himself. He said, if he had not been a soldier he could have been through long before, and "no rule could be intended to injure one whose only misfortune is having sacrificed his time, his constitution and his fortune to his country." The court decided, that if he passed an examination, he could be admitted to the bar. He answered the questions satisfactorily and was licensed as an attorney. This was on the 19th of January, 1782. On the 17th of April he was licensed as counselor. He was then twenty-six years old. He immediately went to practising in Albany. On July 22d, 1782, Aaron Burr was married to Theodosia Prevost. Reasons Why

The Remington Family Sewing Machines ARE SUPERIOR TO

ALL OTHERS 1st.—Their SIMPLICITY—The use of them is very easily acquired, and any girl of ordinary intelligence is capable of keeping them in order.

2nd.—The CONSTRUCTION of the machine is such that it may be run at a higher rate of speed than any shuttle machine now in the market. In factories where the speed has been registered, over 1000 stitches per minute have been attained with ease.

3rd.—Their DURABILITY—Being so strong in all their parts, and fitted with great mechanical nicety, and being free from the harsh jarring movements, and friction, so common in inferior machines, they will wear a long time without repair of any kind.

4th.—Their ADAPTABILITY—By a simple change of the needle and thread, they will sew the finest cambric or the heaviest leather. All the various kinds of; boots and shoes buckskin sewing, clothing, caps, stays, shirts, mantles and dressmaking can be done with equal facility.

5th.—The SHUTTLE—Being large, it will carry a great quantity of thread—thus saving, in a great-measure, the trouble of filling the bobbins. $5 TO $20 per day! Agents wanted! th.—The means of getting at the required TEN-SION on the Threads is so simple and com-plete, that even backstitch on BOTH SIDES of the material [which will not rip or ravel] can be readily obtained. h .- They will Sew with equal facility

Silk, Twist, Linen Thread and common Spool Cotton. h—The have no rotary cams, cog-wheels or lever arms to make a noise, run hard or to get out of order.

By the new and peculiar movement of needle and shuttle and thread controlling parts, there is less wear or strain of the thread used; the thread being set in the material uninjured, the work is therefore better and stronger than that done on the machines.

A Pleasant Place to Live In.

Strangers coming to our village are constantly remaking upon its beauty-it surprises them. Again and again have we received letters from friends who dian neighbors; and we think the time have at some time visited us here, in which this beauty is recalled, showing that the memory of Mexico remains a pleasure, a "joy forever," in their minds. We know how lovingly, and with longing, those to whom it has once been home turn to it again; and it is well sometimes for us who remain, with whom familiarity, in a certain degree, breeds contempt, to remember these facts, to look about us and "count our marcies." Our streets are beautiful, well bordered with good dwellings, and well shaded with maples. In some places the trees on opposite sides almost, if not quite, touch each other, making delightful evenues for walking or riding in warm geather. We have good walks and excellent roads, of which if we boast a little we need not be pronounced unduly proud. No one with an eye for the beautiful can fail to be attracted by the seenery along the two streams running through our village, and affording excellent water power-he need not leave Main street to find some of it; but he will be amply repaid by extending his walk along these creeks in either direction. Our village is healthy, we have fine stores, our business men are up with the times, our churches are prosperous we have an excellent academy and other schools. Also we need not take more than about an hour's ride in a carriage to reach two most delightful summer resorts-Mexico Point and Pleasant Point, on Lake Ontario. We have a railroad just far enough out to be a great convenience and at the same time not an annoyance -it is near at hand and yet spoils nothing.

It is probable that not more than half of us prize our home as we ought.

> The Fulton Times has this: Three Oswego Falls' boys were playing in a grove Monday, the 28th ult., and two of them became angry at the third and determined to hang him. They selected a convenient limb and strung their unhappy victim mercilessly in mid air, and then sat down to see him die. But the victim did not intend giving up the ghost so readily, for he clung to the rope so enaciously and struggled violently to free himself. At length one of the tormenters became inpatient. The victim did not die quick enough to suit him; so instead of awaiting the gradual approach of the grim monster, he determined to expedite matters, and started to a near-by house to borrow an ax with which to cut off the victim's head. The neighbor learning what the ax was wanted for, alarmed the neighborhood, and among them the victim's mother, and they cut down the yet struggling boy.

State Charities Aid Association.

The object of this society is thus stated the Rochester Union and Advertiser "Some of the principal citizens of New ork, gentlemen and ladies, have recentconstituted themselves a new association under the above title.

Their object is to supplement official work in our public charities by ministertrough, and the other taking fright, both ing, in whatever way they can, to the children of want and suffering thrown upon these charities, and also to aid in se jured in the head, near the temple, as to curing such improvements in the instituremain insensible for some time. He is tions devoted to them as desirable and practicable. This work is not based upon any pre-supposition of official mismanagement in these institutions, nor does it allow interference in the conduct of their affairs, the most scrupulous deference being observed in regard to official regulations and authority.'

Of this laudable enterprise the Oswe go Times says : "The agents of the law ciated, and that her kindness will not have their duty specifically pointed out which is to provide comfortable places for the abode of the indigent, to supply them with wholesome food, and to take care generally, of their physical wants. When they have done this, generally they regard their legal duties as discharged. They rarely pay much attention to the moral aspect of the question. There are a thousand things which an organized association of benevolent and Christian adies and gentlemen can do which cannot be so well done by the officers, if they have the disposition, which, in general they have not. But all working harmony will accomplish great good. So far as our City and County institutions are concerned, we know that they compare favorably with the institutions of any other county or city in the state. This is true, whether the matter is considered either in its humanitarian or economical aspect. We are proud of what our Commissioners of Charities in this city have accomplished, and the supervisors and superintendents of the poor have provided most admirably for the indigent under their charge. The ounty buildings at Mexico are creditaole to the people of the county, and the management is also admirable, so far at least as the physical wants and confort of the inmates are concerned."

Obituary.

Russel Druce died of typhoid fever in North Volney, Oswego Co., N. Y., June 7th, 1873, aged 65 years and 10 months. Brother Druce was borne in Richfield, Herkimer Co., N. Y. He gave his heart to the Savior at a camp-meeting held in Wilson Co., Tennessee, Oct. 6th, 1842. I elopement. have before me a letter written by brother Druce to his parents, soon after his conversion, in which he makes the most tender and yet earnest appeals to them, respecting the interests of their souls. he tells them how the woods rang with his cries, and the rocks were wet with his tears, until he found the Savior; then as quick as thought his weeping was changed to praising and rejoicing. He remained there a few years teaching, and about the year 1847, returned to Volney Oswego, Co., N. Y., where his parents then lived. December 28, 1848, he was united in marriage with Mrs. Sarah J. Howland, and soon after joined the M. E. Church, with which he remained a most faithful and useful member until Jesus called him to come up higher.

His religious experience was characterized by a steady faith in Christ, and an earnest devotion to the interests of his church. of June, and thank you heartily. earn that Mr. Carlin's resignation remains unchanged; I had some hope that he might withdraw it, therefore, as pres-ident, I shall try, as health and circum-stances admit, all fair means to push the Clerc business forward. We may place our reliance on Mr. Carlin's cheerful service for drawing some most suitable plans and designs for the Clerc monunent, according to his artistic taste, as he has done beautifully for the Gallau-

In turning a corner the vehicle was upset, the horses succeeded in detatching themselves from it, and went on running about 2 miles until they were stopped by some citizens. The bugdid any of his family. A considerable loss to Edward.

I will mention what I have read in the Clyde Times relative to an uneducated mute's misfortune. "A man was arrested in Troy the other day for stealing a watch, but the complainant being deaf and dumb and being unable either to write or to read, no complaint could be sustained. The prisoner was then discharged. An unprecedented case in the history of the law," This is a very unfortunate affair. J. R. P. Wolcott, July 21, 1873.

A Little Misunderstanding.

At this moment the colored porter of the Columbia came up and extended his hand. The young men surrendered their baggage checks. Then they made their way to the 'bus,' talking in signs all the

Of course all eyes were on them, for it had. in the mysterious manner known only to watering places, got noised about that two deaf-mutes were among the guests. Charlie was the centre of attraction, but he was evidently used to such things, for WEST HENNIKER, N. H., July 21, '73 he calmly looked about him and accord-

"Quite an interesting company,"

"Quite." Spelled back George. 'But, Charlie, can't you see half the girls are in love with you?"

"No! Can't see it," replied Charlie.
But he did not hear the whispers pass ng from mouth to mouth. George did though, and what he heard was something like these:

"Isn't he splendid?"
"Perfectly. And what brilliant black "Oh! such a sweet moustache," whispered the fair one who had been so scared at the depot.

"Do see how beautifully his hair curls," was whispered back.

And so the chatting went on. The object of it, all unconscious, was giving orders to the waiter and devouring the from laughing. Indeed, the difficulty grew as the chatting of the young ladies became more merry. He knew he could not keep sober much longer, he must have an outlet, and so on the spur of the moment he invented a joke which happily "took," and George had his opportunity to laugh.

Supper over, Charlie and his chum set-tled down on the piazza for a smoke and chat. For a time they seemed oblivious to all the rest of the world, then Charlie looked around and made the pleasing announcement to George that they were the observed of all observers. Later in the evening George found an old time lady friend, and of course they walked the manual alphabet very well. A very welcome discovery Charlie thought, and for the rest of the week they firted most desperately. About this time Charlie was suddenly called away, and an hour before he left he was eating his dinner. A new waiter had been installed at his table that morning, and unluckily could not read or write. Charlie was vexed, but he took up his bill of fare and spoke out his order as clearly and distinctly as any other guest. Instantly he was the target of many flashing eyes—but, for a wonder, there was no whispering on this occasion, most of the young ladies seemed to have no appetite that day, for they soon arose and left the table vacant. As soon as they reached the parlor, (where all seemed to go with one accord,) a general conversation began.

"My stars !" said one. "He isn't a mute after all," said ano-

"I think it's real mean."
"I'd like to box his ears."

And so the talk went on, every one felt sure she had said something aloud. Every body was vexed and could never look him in the face again. A few were actually provoked to propose and sold of the courage to the courage to propose and sold of the courage to the courage to propose and sold of the courage to the courage to propose and sold of the courage to the courage to propose and sold of the courage to 19.775

Just then George, (who long ago had been discovered to be in possession of all his senses,) appeared and was immediately surrounded, and half a dozen questions asked at the same time. "Foo many," he said. "One at a time.

"What made you tell us that Charlie Slocum was a deaf-mute?" "I didn't, did I ?"

"Well, you didn't tell us that he was not, which is the same thing." "Of course it is. Charlie is deaf."

"But he can speak, can't he?"
"Oh! as to that, he can speak tolerably well. He is what folks can a semimute. He finds no difficulty in speaking when he is so inclined, but as to hearing. why, he is as deaf as a post."

"Are you sure he is deaf-real deaf?" "Oh ! I'm so glad."
"What! Glad that he is deaf?"

"Oh! no, no, I'm so glad you joined us so soon after supper. Come, let's waltz, and you do waltz so beautifully." And George suffered himself to be led away by the black eyed beauty. KOUPONETI.

Mr. W. W. Miles, of Canandai gua, says in his letter :- "I heard that a young man named Oscar Tiffany, living near Bristol, robbed a mute, named Egbert Childs, of a watch and a small sum of money at Sengce Point, on the Canandaigua Lake, on the Fourth of July. Tiffany was arrested and the stolen property recovered. He was brought to this place the next day and gave bail."
